

Renata Tubini

An expert in change management in disruptive environments

Overview

Renata is a professional coach who specialises in personal transformation and executive development. She applies her knowledge of technology and change management in disruptive environments to facilitate the organisational transformation process through people. She enjoys facilitating both individual and groups and leads with empathy and charisma.

Prior to coaching, Renata led teams and managed projects in leadership and organisational development for over 25 years. Most notably she served as the Human Resource Director at Itaú, Brazil's largest bank, where she implemented culture transformation programs for managers and senior executives.
